DOMAINE DE TRÉVALLON

Lugano – Wednesday, 6 December 2017

The famed Domaine de Trévallon estate lies just outside of Saint-Rémy-de-Provence in the village of Saint-Etienne-du-Grès. Covering over 17 hectares of land, the vineyards sit on the northern side of the Alpilles Mountain Range.

In 1973, Eloi Dürrbach was one of the first to plant vines in the Alpilles region. With a small biodynamic production, 15 hectares are dedicated to the cultivation of red grape varieties, divided equally amongst Cabernet Sauvignon and Syrah. While the remaining 2 hectares are planted to white varieties, mainly Marsanne and Roussane. During the tasting will present two vintages of the Trévallon Rouge, the 2005 and 2009, to show the true aging potential of these wines. We will also pour one of the hidden gems of French whites, the Trévallon Blanc 2015.

Reflecting their distinctive character of garrigue or Mediterranean scrublands, Domaine de Trévallon is one of the best kept secrets in the wine world, thanks to their quality and longevity.
